MEDIA RELEASE

22nd October, 2010

Busselton Hospital Now Waterwise

Busselton Hospital was named this week as the first company to be recognised under Busselton Water's "Waterwise Businesses in Action" programme.

Over the last 12 months the Hospital has saved 12,000kl and $11,000 in water rates by undertaking a leak audit and resulting repairs.

Julie Rawlings, Acting CEO Busselton Water, stated that the waterwise recognition programme, which was launched during National Water Week, was designed to highlight those businesses that were being proactive with water conservation.

"Obviously businesses are a major consumer of water and as such they play an important role when planning for our long term future," Ms Rawlings said.

"Busselton Hospital were proactive with identifying leaks but also undertook other initiatives including changing their floor cleaners, which required less water consumption overall.

"We are very pleased to formally recognise the Busselton Hospital and their staff and encourage other businesses to also lead by example.

"If your business has planted a waterwise garden, installed a grey water system or waterwise appliances, then we would like to encourage you to nominate for the Waterwise Business in Action programme."

Busselton Water will now seek to recognise one Waterwise Business in Action per month. For nomination forms contact Julie Rawlings on 9781 0500.
